

A native Augustan, Clay Boardman is a Principal and Senior Vice-President of Development for Hull Storey Gibson Companies, LLC. Prior to Clay's joining the firm, he was CEO of Boardman Petroleum, Inc., Charter-Triad Terminals, LLC and other affiliated companies. BPI developed, owned and operated over 75 convenience stores, travel centers and fast food locations throughout the southeast selling the chain to Circle K in 1999. Charter-Triad owned and operated nine large petroleum storage facilities in the southeast handling gasoline, diesel, butane and jet fuels which was sold to Kinder-Morgan Energy Partners in late 2004. During that time and since, Clay has served as CEO of Flywheel, LLC, a/k/a Augusta Capital, LLC which has focused on large scale historic rehabilitation projects primarily in the Augusta area. Projects include Enterprise Mill, Sutherland Mill, Houghton School, Widows Home, William Robinson School and others. He also co-founded Charter Acquisitions, LLC where he serves as managing member of the retail development company.

Clay is proud of his association with many and varied civic causes serving on their boards and, in many cases, serving as their board chair. These associations include the Community Foundation for the CSRA, Georgia Health Sciences Foundation, Augusta Preparatory Day School, Augusta Warrior Project, Turn Back the Block, Augusta Tomorrow, FORE Augusta Foundation, Paine College, the Georgia Trust for Historic Preservation, Historic Augusta, Georgia Cities Foundation as well as many others. He has been in leadership positions with many capital campaigns in the Augusta area including Augusta Preparatory Day School and the Salvation Army Kroc Center campaign. He has served or presently serves on corporate boards including United Distributors, Music with Friends, LLC, Sixthman, LLC, MacDuff Group, Wachovia, First Bank of Augusta, Security Federal, Thomson Oak Flooring, Inc. and Floor and Decor Outlets of America.

Clay is very proud of his family, his three children, Clayton, Carter and Catherine, and is an active communicant and former officer of St. Paul's Episcopal Church.
