

Annual Report of the Georgia Historical Society for the Year 2016

BY W. TODD GROCE

PRESIDENT AND CEO, GEORGIA HISTORICAL SOCIETY

For the Georgia Historical Society, the year 2016 was marked by record fund raising and innovative programming as we once again successfully fulfilled our educational and research mission to collect and teach the history of our state and nation. Through our school-age and adult education programs, teacher training, scholarly publications, research services, and participation in state and national media coverage, GHS helped the public use the power of history to make sense of the present and reach informed decisions about the future.

Financially, it was another highly successful year. The institution met or exceeded all its fund raising goals while expanding and strengthening its donor base and support. At the end of the fiscal year on June 30, 2016, total assets were $15,880,216 as opposed to $14,970,163 in 2015, an increase of 6 percent. The endowment fund on June 30, 2016, stood at $8,386,897, up from the previous year's total of $8,198,104. Thanks to careful management by Executive VP and Chief Operating Officer Laura García-Culler and our financial team, for the seventh year in a row GHS received Charity Navigator's coveted four-star rating, placing us among an elite group of national not-for-profits whose financial practices exceed industry standards. Indeed, only 3 percent of all organizations in the United States reviewed by Charity Navigator received the top rating for seven consecutive years.

In terms of education, GHS scored several major achievements. We reorganized our Georgia History Festival, creating new curricula for teachers and students and consolidating all of our public and school programming under the umbrella of the Festival. Led by co-chairs Alice Jepson and Bill Jones III, the Festival committee raised a record $1,026,000; and our education staff, led by Director of Programs Christy Crisp, taught history to approximately 250,000 Georgia students and teachers. The Festival culminated with the induction by Governor Nathan Deal of Jimmy Blanchard and Muhtar Kent as the 2016 Georgia Trustees. Another highlight of the Festival was the kick-off lecture, held in September and co-sponsored by the UVaClub of Savannah, featuring a discussion moderated by GHS Senior Historian Dr. Stan Deaton with Dr. William Ferraro, Editor of the Papers of George Washington at the University of Virginia. The program was followed by a lavish “Georgia Washington Dinner” presented by the historic Olde Pink House restaurant in Savannah.

GHS once again extended its reach beyond Georgia when in August we received a nearly $155,000 grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities to implement a seminar for twenty-five university and college faculty from across the nation in the summer of 2017 entitled “Recognizing an Imperfect Past: History, Memory and the American Public.” Another notable education development during 2016 was the assumption by GHS of responsibility for the maintenance of the entire historical marker program. The approximately two thousand historical markers erected by the state of Georgia between 1954 and 1998 will be repaired, recast, and replaced as needed. New historical markers continued to be erected all over the state. Among them was the Savannah Protest Movement (the latest site on our Georgia Civil Rights Movement Trail); and Coca-Cola, Southern Company, and the 1996 Olympics as a part of our Business History Initiative (BHI). The BHI also produced case studies about these iconic Georgia companies for Georgia’s 8th grade teachers and students.

On the research side of our mission, GHS continued to make archival records and scholarship accessible to the public. Our Research Center staff, led by Lynette Stoudt, served tens of thousands of researchers from across the globe and completed the processing of two major collections, the papers of Atlanta entrepreneur and environmentalist Ray C. Anderson, and the Sea Island corporate records. In addition, we received and accessioned dozens of new collections, a complete list of which can be found in this report. We were also fortunate to receive a pledge of $250,000 from Ray Masciarella to establish a permanent endowment fund to provide for conservation of the archival collection. Ray’s generosity is already making possible the restoration of portraits and maps.

It was also an exciting year for the publishing arm of our research mission. In commemoration of the centennial of the Georgia Historical Quarterly, GHS completely redesigned the publication, the first new look for the GHQ in a generation, making the cutting-edge research presented in its pages more accessible than ever. A three-year grant from the Waters Foundation and the establishment of the Dr. William T. Moore Distinguished Editor will provide much-needed support for the GHQ as it begins its next one hundred years of publication. Through a partnership with the online journal service JSTOR, the GHQ had approximately fifty thousand article views last year.

The Next Century Initiative, a $13 million capital and endowment campaign designed to launch GHS into its next one hundred years of service to the people of Georgia, reached the $6 million mark by the end of 2016. Among the important gifts received last year was a $1 million grant from the Lettie Pate Evans Foundation for the renovation and expansion of the Research Center. To promote the campaign, GHS published an endowment donor book featuring biographical sketches of those for whom named funds have been established, ensuring that these champions of Georgia history will always be remembered. We also produced a video entitled “We Believe” that explores the GHS mission and the power of history to create a better tomorrow. The video and book can be accessed by visiting our website at georgiahistory.com. Director of Communications Pattye Meagher ensured that these productions and our other programs and activities received extensive national media coverage as GHS continued to position itself as the source for Georgia history.

One of the most momentous events of the year was an act of nature. When Hurricane Matthew slammed into the Georgia coast in October, GHS was prepared. Thanks to a well-designed and executed disaster plan and the efficiency of Georgia Power, we escaped the storm unscathed. Despite Category I winds that created extensive tree loss throughout the city, there was no major water or debris damage anywhere on the campus, and Georgia Power had the electricity and HVAC back on at the Research Center within 36 hours.

In December, GHS was honored to host the 2016 State Historical Administrators Meeting. Twenty-seven CEOs from state historical societies, archives, and museums across the nation spent three days in Savannah discussing issues, challenges, and opportunities facing our profession. The attendees toured the GHS campus and learned more about the programs and activities undertaken over the past decade or so that have helped strengthen our mission and raise our visibility in the state.

These are just some of the highlights of an exciting year made possible by the hard work and dedication of many people. We are fortunate to have such an effective board-staff team and great, visionary leadership up and down the line. The GHS staff, headed by Executive Vice President and Chief Operating Officer Laura García-Culler, continues to impress and inspire all of us with their creativity and productivity. The Board of Curators, led by Chairmen Robert Jepson and Vince Dooley, offered invaluable guidance, influence, and financial support that allowed GHS to grow to new heights and effectively fulfill its mission. Bob Jepson wrapped up a remarkable two-year term as chairman in May, and it will come as no surprise that the period of his chairmanship was the most successful in the history of this institution.

As the United States approaches its 250th anniversary in 2026, an understanding of history has never been more important than it is right now. The kind of future we will create is directly tied to how well we understand the past. By teaching history and promoting research, the Georgia Historical Society helps the people of Georgia to be better, more informed citizens of this republic, ensuring the survival of our fragile constitutional democracy.

On behalf of all of us at GHS, let me extend our deepest thanks for the support you provided during the past year. The accomplishments you will read about in this report were a direct result of your generosity of time and treasure.

PROGRAMS

Educational Outreach

“Sophia’s Schoolhouse,” an educational blog produced by GHS education coordinator Sophia Sineath, features videos and traditional blog posts by GHS staff and volunteers. Posted on the GHS YouTube, SchoolTube, and TeacherTube channels, blog posts encourage historical research and focus on utilizing primary sources in the classroom. During 2016, six new videos and three written posts were created as part of this project. The blog can be found at <http://schoolhouse.georgiahistory.com/>.

“Off the Deaton Path,” a blog written by GHS senior historian Stan Deaton, featured six new entries in 2016, on a variety of historical subjects.

In 2016, major updates were made to the online exhibits and featured historical figure pages on the GHS website. The changes were created to make a better user experience. <http://georgiahistory.com/education-outreach/online-exhibits/>.

Georgia History Festival

Georgia History Festival 2016: From Waffle Fries to Global Skies: Georgia Business and the Making of Modern America

The 2016 Georgia History Festival (GHF) grew beyond the typical annual events of February to encompass the entire six-month period leading up to that anniversary period. Beginning in September with the new school year, GHF events and resources expanded to allow more opportunities for engaging new audiences across the state.

GHF Keynote Address – January 28, 2016 – Dr. Stan Deaton, Columbus Museum, Columbus
Colonial Faire and Muster – February 4–5, 2016 – Wormsloe State Historic Site, Savannah
Super Museum Sunday – February 5, 2016 – multiple sites throughout Georgia
Georgia Day Parade – February 10, 2016 – Savannah
Trustees Gala – February 18, 2016 – Hyatt Regency, Savannah

In-School Presentations, Savannah — January 2016 - GHF staff engaged approximately 1,182 elementary, middle, and high school students in an interactive program that taught students how to analyze historical advertisements in exploration of the 2016 Focus of Study in thirteen schools.

Newspapers in Education — Published on Tuesday, February 9, 2016 - Inspired by the online education resources, the Newspapers in Education insert is an activity-based resource made available to teacher-subscribers through the Savannah Morning News. PDF version available on the GHS website: <http://georgiahistory.com/education-outreach/online-exhibits/online-exhibits/from-waffle-fries-to-global-skies-how-georgia-business-created-the-modern-world/newspapers-in-education/>. Copies distributed 2,400

Georgia History Festival 2017: A State of Innovation

The 2016–2017 GHF began in September 2016 with the Public Lecture “George Washington, Leadership, and Global Revolution” on September 29, 2016, at First Baptist Church in Savannah. The UVaClub of Savannah and the Georgia Historical Society hosted a conversation with Dr. William Ferraro, editor-in-chief of the George Washington Papers. Dr. Stan Deaton, The Elaine B. Andrews Distinguished Historian at GHS, engaged Dr. Ferraro on topics from Founding Fathers to global conflicts to presidential elections.

In-School Presentations, Statewide: From September to December, education coordinator Sophia Sineath visited four schools around the state for special in-school presentations based on the 2016–2017 Georgia History Festival Theme, “A State of Innovation.” Presentations engaged approximately 437 students.

Archive Month Research Round-Up Field Trips, GHS Research Center, Savannah: In October 2016, two schools visited the GHS Research Center for Archives Month Research Round-Up field trips. Utilizing interactive stations with relevant, engaging activities, these experiences introduced students to the work of historical archives and demystified the process of identifying and using historical resources. Field Trips engaged approximately eighty-six students.

Teacher Training event with George Washington’s Mount Vernon, GHS Research Center, Savannah: GHS welcomed nineteen teachers to the Research Center for a one-day professional development workshop presented in partnership with the education team at George Washington’s Mount Vernon. Teachers learned about the agricultural innovations of President George Washington and Charles Herty through lectures, archival collections, hands-on activities, and discussion.

Online Educational Resources: During the reporting period, the James Edward Oglethorpe and Sequoyah pages were enhanced and new teacher guides were published to support the Georgia History Festival theme. <http://georgiahistory.com/education-outreach/online-exhibits/featured-historical-figures/>.
