

W. TODD GROCE

Todd Groce is President and Chief Executive Officer of the Georgia Historical Society, the independent, statewide institution responsible for collecting and teaching Georgia history. Headquartered in Savannah with an office in Atlanta, the Georgia Historical Society was founded in 1839 and is the oldest continuously operated historical organization in the South.

Dr. Groce was born Virginia and grew up in Tennessee. He earned a B. A. from the University of Memphis, graduating cum laude and with honors in history, and an M.A. and Ph.D. in history from the University of Tennessee. He also holds a Certificate in Leadership Development from the United States Army War College.

Before coming to Georgia in 1995, he taught history for three years at the University of Tennessee and Maryville College and then served five years as executive director of the East Tennessee Historical Society.

Dr. Groce is the author of Mountain Rebels: East Tennessee Confederates and the Civil War and co-editor with Stephen V. Ash of Nineteenth Century America: Essays in Honor of Paul H. Bergeron. He has also written over 100 articles, essays, and book reviews for a wide range of publications such as The Journal of Southern History, The New Georgia Encyclopedia, the Atlanta Journal Constitution, and the New York Times. He frequently lectures on the Civil War, World War II, and other aspects of U.S. military history and has made television appearances on the BBC, the Discovery Channel, C-SPAN, the History Channel, Georgia Public Television, and various internet classroom productions.

Dr. Groce is a graduate of Leadership Georgia, past president of the Rotary Club of Savannah, and past governor of the Society of Colonial Wars in the State of Georgia. He formerly served as a trustee of Savannah Country Day School and has been a vestryman and Sunday school teacher in the Episcopal Church. For the past eight years, Georgia Trend magazine has listed him among the “100 Most Influential Georgians.”

An avid outdoorsman, musician, and collector of military antiques, Dr. Groce enjoys hunting and backpacking. He has hiked every major Civil War battlefield and toured many other battlefields across North America, the Caribbean, and Europe.
